The Lisheen Mine is situated in county Tipperary in the heart of the Irish Midlands. The Mine is now in its second decade of operations and is currently one of the largest producers of Zinc concentrates in Europe.

The Lisheen Mine is wholly owned by Anglo American plc, a world leader in mining. Anglo American has operations in all six inhabited continents.

Lisheen Mine is a 1.5 million tonne per year zinc and lead operation. They deal with very challenging wet, weathered ground which behaves almost more like a clay at times and as such shotcrete is very important. EFNARC's training was conducted as part of a shotcrete study commencing in March which encompassed all aspects of shotcreting at Lisheen including Management aspects, mechanical aspects, mix design and training.
